

Project Prompt: The Environment.

Is global warming happening? How do we replace oil? What can you do? Is our country falling? Is the sense of community disappearing? How do we get jobs back? How to build a community stronger? How do you get investors to come? These are common questions today and they both revolve around the word "Environment". You must pick on of the following directions and create an interactive "environment" that engages and educates the user.

Disposable Friends Carnival

Overview:

Disposable Friends Carnival is a carnival that has a series of games that show how our daily lifestyle negatively effects animals.

The flash consists of three games.

Gas a Dog: Gas prairie dogs and win plots of land. It highlights how rapid development has lead to mass murder of animals, not just prairie dogs.

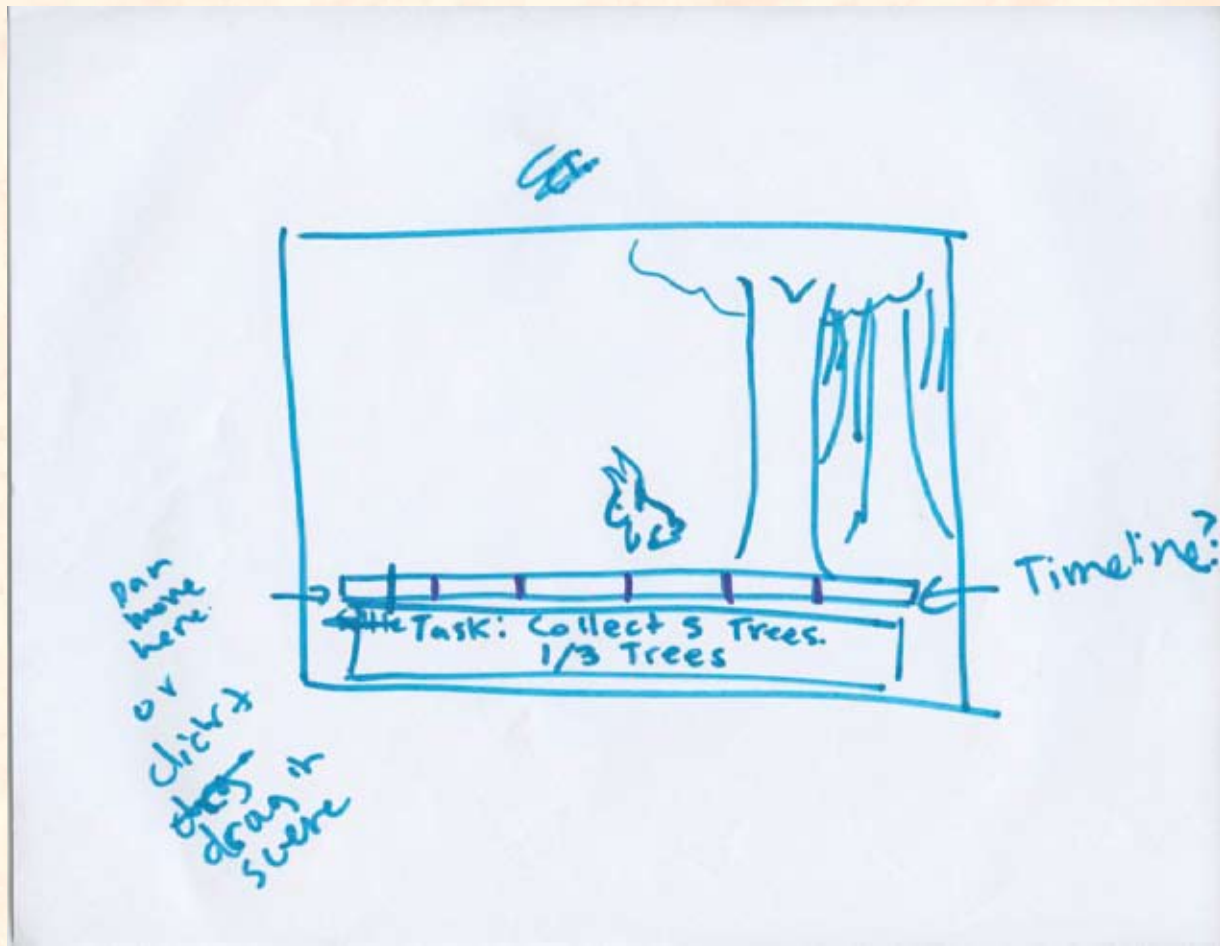

Tree Chop: Successfully knock down trees. Prizes consist of houses. It highlights the issue of deforestation, resource consumption.

Fast Food: Shoot animals, get lunch. Billions of animals are killed every year for human consumption, and treated inhumanly.

Audience: Older Teens

Poor prairie dogs, always in the way.

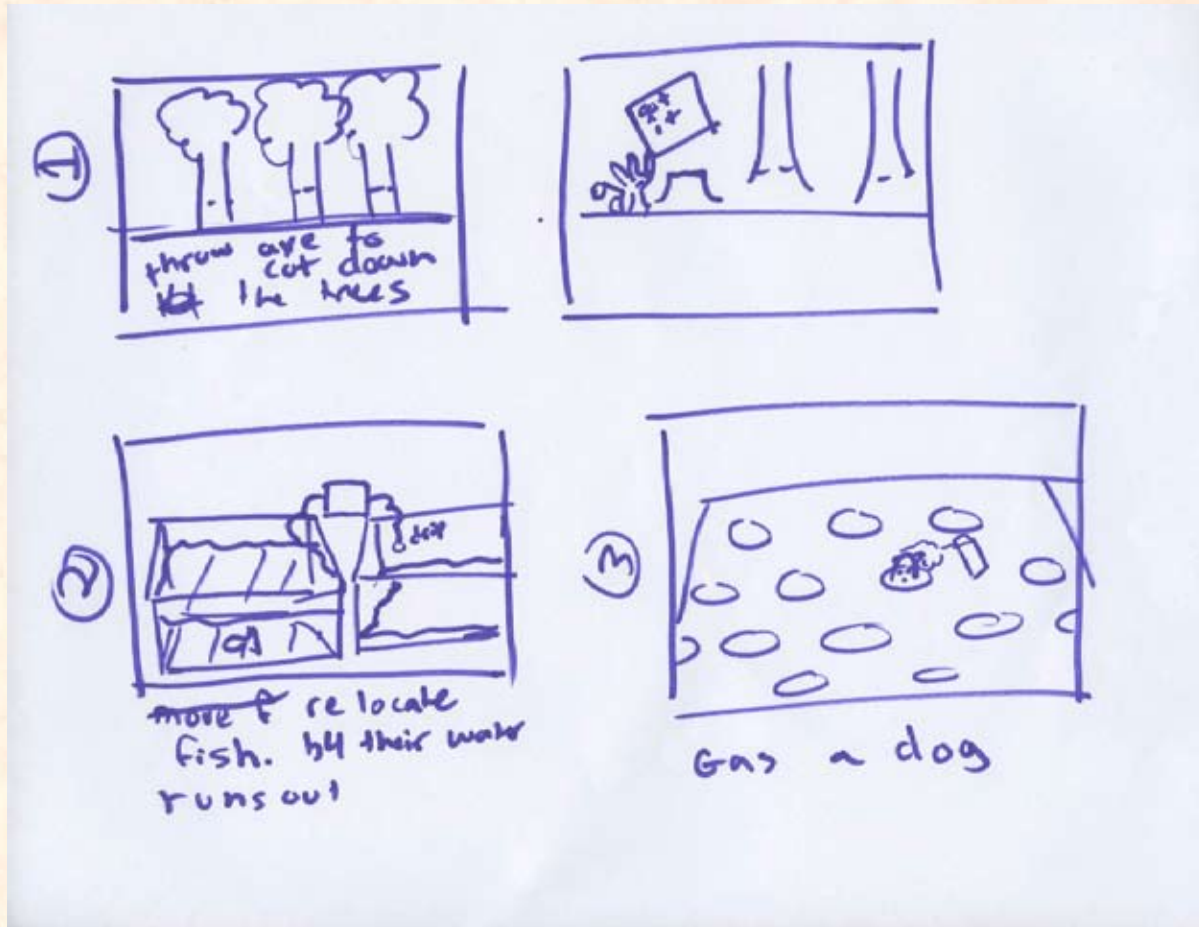

Process Work - Sketches

Kill livestock to feed the town. Unfortunately killing them is not enough in the long run.

Process Work - Concept Illustrations

Initial concept illustrations. The idea was a scene that worsened in condition when you completed tasks in a scene.

Where's a squirrel to go when you cut down it's trees?

Process Work - Tests and Styles

Abandoned Fish tank game: Pump water from one tank to the other before the time runs out. Catch is that there are fish in the tank of water you are pumping from.

Process Work - Tests and Styles

I first thought I'd go for the elaborate illustrative feel that you find in some carnivals. But I needed more details, and the style did not fit the satirical mood of the project.

Process Work - Tests and Styles

The next style I tried was a photo montage.

Gas a Dog: The steam was made in aftereffects. The cord is two curve to lines. The prairie dog in the middle has no special bonus. He's just an angel to make it more painful to kill him.
